What's love without a sense of humor!?

HEADS UP GUYS:
"I don't want anything for Valentine's Day" is the same as "I'm fine."

My wife is so negative. I remembered the car seat, the stroller, AND the diaper bag. Yet all she can talk about is how I forgot the baby.

I just asked my husband if he remembers what today is...
Scaring men is easy.

Can't understand why girls want giant teddy bears, high calorie chocolate and soon-to-be-dead roses on Valentines Day. Just give me a good pizza, a cold beer, no conversation and I'll love you forever.

If love is blind,
why is lingerie so popular?

Every time you talk to your wife, your mind should remember that... 'This conversation will be recorded for Training and Quality purpose'

Beauty is only skin deep ...but ugly goes all the way to the bone!

This Month's SPECIAL FEATURE

Living the RV LIFESTYLE!

Slow down and unwind!

When you go RVing you don't have to worry about missing a flight, losing your luggage or renting a car. You don't even have to worry about unpacking. Home is on wheels, the world is your backyard and the journey is your life.

MARRIAGE PLUS WORK??!

"Marriage requires falling in love with the same person many times." Juggling the demands of a career and marriage can be stressful. Let's keep that spark alive!

Love is in the air this month as well as ice, cold and snow. The obvious solution is a nice cozy fireplace or favorite couch snuggling with the one you love. And love can certainly mean being surrounded by whatever and whomever you love. Notice that big fat cat in the picture - that's my 25 pound Monkey and when he's curled up on my lap purring like a steam engine... well I certainly feel wrapped up in love. Add a 90 pound lab, a 13 year old and my favorite husband and I'm so wrapped up in love I just can't breathe!! Life is good.

Our special feature this month explores the RV lifestyle (RV Show at State Park on March 1-4, feature starts on page 10). Can you imagine packin' up and movin' on to explore where the road takes you!? Read up and at least consider the possibilities!

February-the month of love. As we grow older and wiser our definition of love changes. What once was the drama of I-can't-breath-or-think-or-eat-without-you becomes the comfortable tuna-noodle-casserole-Friday-night-on-the-couch kinda thing. It might not sound very exciting but it's exactly where most of us want to be. Perfect.

I can still hear my college girlfriends belting out 'Tina Turner's What's love got to do with it... What's love but a sweet old-fashion notion - Who needs a heart when a heart can be broken'. Of course we were single at the time and probably enjoying every moment of our hearts-been-broken sisterhood over a pitcher of beer.

We can appreciate what love actually does 'got to do with it' as we grow older and wiser. It is the vine we cling to as we traverse the jungle. And Tom... well, he's my vine and my Valentine everyday in this here jungle!

Enjoy, be well, and love dearly!

LIFE. Enjoy it!

WINTERS in WISCONSIN

If we have to go out when the wind chill is 35 below, most of us dash from one warm air bubble to the next as quickly as we can. Safely inside again, we unwind scarves, wipe fog from our glasses. Winter weather serves as a reminder that most of us are fragile, indoor creatures - unlike our ancestors who dwelt mostly outdoors. How did they do that?

A few minutes before the church services started, the congregation members were sitting in their pews and talking.

Suddenly, Satan appeared at the front of the church. Everyone started screaming and running for the exits, trampling each other in a frantic effort to get away from evil incarnate.

Soon the church was empty except for one elderly gentleman who sat calmly in his pew without moving, seemingly oblivious to the fact that Gods' ultimate enemy was in his presence...

So Satan walked up to the man and said, 'Do you know who I am?'

The man replied, 'Yep, sure do.'

'Aren't you afraid of me?' Satan asked.

'Nope, sure ain't,' said the man.

'Don't you realize I can kill you with one word?' asked Satan.

'Don't doubt it for a minute,' returned the old man, in an even tone.

'Did you know that I can cause you profound, horrifying AGONY for all eternity?' persisted Satan.

'Yep,' was the calm reply.

'And you are still not afraid?' asked Satan.

'Nope,' said the old man.

More than a little perturbed, Satan asked, 'Why aren't you afraid of me?'

The man calmly replied, 'Been married to your sister for 48 years.'

A SUCCESSFUL Marriage REQUIRES falling in love many times WITH THE SAME PERSON ~Mignon McLaughlin

Marriage + Work. Keep that SPARK ALIVE!!

By Kathy Kulig

Juggling the demands of a career and marriage can put a lot of strain on couples. How do you maintain marriage bliss? Let's keep that spark alive!

Break up the routine. Go to a new restaurant, wear an outfit you normally wouldn't wear, go to a movie in the middle of the week, go out of town at the last minute. A change in routine can be enough to breathe fresh life in a stressful schedule.

Balance and organization. When both spouses are working, reorganizing household duties can often relieve stress and free up more relaxing time. Rotate duties like grocery shopping, cooking, cleaning, yard work, pet care, etc. Does one spouse get home earlier than the other? Perhaps that one could start dinner.

Share your goals and dreams and help each other attain them. Does your spouse even know what you've always wanted to do, but never had the nerve to try? Why not share those dreams and take steps to accomplish them?

Sacrifices. Healthy marriages will include its share of sacrifices to keep the spark alive. Give something so your loved one will benefit, but not to the extent of being a doormat. When respect is strong, it doesn't feel like a chore or sacrifice, it's a joy.

Take care of health/appearance. Workout, eat healthier. Look good, feel good and be healthy for yourself and each other.

Maintain outside friendships. Close friendships outside the marriage are important. Depending solely on your spouse for friendship can build dependency and resentment.

Turn off the technology. We live in a world of instant technological gratification. Television, computers, Internet, cell phones, tablets, email, texting, etc. We're constantly bombarded by this activity. It's hard to turn it off, or turn off our brains. Do turn off the technology and reconnect with the people in your life.

Plan to make love. Does it sound silly? Not really when you consider the daily routine of an average couple both working full time jobs. They come home from their jobs, have dinner, then continue to work—answering emails, writing out bills and taking phone calls. 11 p.m. arrives and they're too exhausted to say more than, "I love you" and "Good night." Plan to make love. Set a date and time. Send a text message to remind your spouse, tease him.

Sense of humor. Try to find the humorous side of everyday dilemmas may help diffuse stressful situations. Learn to laugh at the absurd or through difficult times together.

Stop Doing List. As much as we say we don't have enough time, we continue to cram more and more projects and responsibilities into a twenty-four hour day. Instead of making To Do Lists, try making Stop Doing Lists. Learn to say, No when people ask you to take on extra projects, volunteer, guilt you into doing more and more. By eliminating this excess, you'll free up time to relax and be with your loved one.

Compliments are always welcome and so often over looked. "You look nice," "Dinner was great," "I love you." Say it, text it, email it during the day, every day.

Keeping that spark alive comes with learning a few tips on how to maintain the balance between work and marriage. Bliss in a relationship can be restored with conscious effort. It's the little things too. Appreciate the little things, those precious, perfect moments, a thoughtful word or look. Tell your spouse how much you appreciate him. Flirt, touch, tease, hold hands, listen and do all these things often.

HOW WILL PRESIDENT TRUMP'S FEDERAL TAX REFORM AFFECT YOU?

FINANCE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Timothy M. Stasinoulis, Founder and CEO of Aegis Wealth Advisors, LLC

A Simplified Tax Code for 2018

When President Donald Trump signed the Tax Cuts & Jobs Act into law, one of the goals was to simplify the federal tax code. Although we have another year before we file our 2018 taxes, now is the time to start considering how the new tax code will affect us.

President Donald Trump signed the Tax Cuts & Jobs Act into law on December 22, and on January 1, some key details of the Internal Revenue Code abruptly changed. However, some of the impact of the Tax Cuts & Jobs Act will be felt later than 2018.

On January 1, the federal estate tax exemption will double; the standard federal income tax deduction will nearly double. The top corporate income tax rate will fall from 35% to 21%. Most business owners who make pass-through income will be able to deduct the first 20% of that income tax-free.

Workers may not see changes to their paychecks until February. This is because the Internal Revenue Service needs to release new withholding tables. Those tables are slated to appear in January.

Two provisions of the TCJA may also apply retroactively for some taxpayers. A larger federal tax deduction for out-of-pocket medical expenses is allowed not just for 2018, but also for 2017. Taxpayers who itemize may write off qualifying medical expenses exceeding 7.5% of income in 2017, instead of 10% of income. Businesses that bought new capital equipment after September 27, 2017 will be permitted to fully and immediately expense those purchases for 2017.

Two other changes will not happen until January 1, 2019. On that day, the individual health insurance mandate is scheduled to be repealed; no taxpayer will face a penalty for not having health coverage. Another delayed change pertains to divorcing couples. Taxpayers who divorce in 2019 and succeeding years will not be able to deduct alimony payments.

Many of the changes authorized by the passage of the TCJA could expire after 2025. Congress may or may not renew them at the end of that year. The reduction of the corporate tax rate to 21% is an exception – that is permanent.

This is a good time to plan your 2018 tax strategy. Talk to your CPA or tax preparer soon, to see how you might take advantage of the adjustments.

In addition to eliminating many itemized deductions, the personal exemption is gone. The individual standard deduction, though, has almost doubled to $12,000 ($6,350 in 2017) and $24,000 for married couples filing jointly ($12,700 in 2017). For many taxpayers used to filling out Schedule A, the much larger standard deduction may make up for the absence of most itemized deductions.

Are the days of itemizing over? Not quite, but now that the Tax Cuts & Jobs Act is the law, all kinds of itemized federal tax deductions have vanished. Here is a partial list of the itemized deductions no longer available in 2018, which are being replaced with a much larger and simplified standard deduction.

Moving expenses. Last year, you could deduct such costs if you made a job-related move that had you resettling at least 50 miles away from your previous address. You could even take this deduction without itemizing. Now, only military servicemembers can take this deduction.

Casualty, disaster, and theft losses. This deduction is not totally gone. If you incur such losses during 2018-25 due to a federally declared disaster (that is, the President declares your area a disaster area), you are still eligible to take a federal tax deduction for these personal losses.

Home office use. Employee business expense deductions are now gone from the Internal Revenue Code, which is unfortunate for people who work remotely.

Unreimbursed travel and mileage. Previously, unreimbursed travel expenses related to work started becoming deduct-

Age 50+? You may be at risk for AMD vision loss

by Cheryl L. Dejewski

Age-related macular degeneration (AMD) is the leading cause of central vision loss in Americans over age 50—profoundly impacting quality of life and independence. The team at Eye Care Specialists explains how prompt diagnosis and advanced treatment are vital to protecting and preserving vision.

What is AMD?

“AMD is an eye disease in which the macula (a highly sensitive area of the retina) becomes damaged causing loss of straight-ahead central vision (as needed for driving a car, reading fine print and recognizing faces),” explains Mark Freedman, MD, one of the state’s leading ophthalmologists and continuing education lecturers. “‘Dry’ AMD is more common (90% of cases), tends to progress slowly, and be less severe. ‘Wet’ AMD is less common, but can progress quickly and cause profound loss of central vision. Without treatment, 70% of wet AMD patients become legally blind within two years.”

Risk Factors

- Age: The risk of developing AMD skyrockets from 2% for adults ages 50-59 to 30% for those age 75+
- Heredity: A family history of AMD
- Gender: Females are at greater risk
- Race: Being Caucasian raises risk
- Smoking: Increases risk 2-5 times
- Circulatory problems
- Obesity and inactivity
- Light-colored eyes
- Prolonged sun/UV-light exposure
- A diet high in fat and low in vitamins, minerals and antioxidants

Treatment

“For significant dry AMD, we usually recommend vitamin supplements, sunglasses, and not smoking to prevent or slow progression. For wet AMD, we review the risks, benefits and candidacy for injections of special medications, such as Avastin, Eylea and Lucentis,” explains Brett Rhode, MD, a partner at Eye Care Specialists, where thousands of AMD patients are diagnosed and treated each year. “These revolutionary drugs inhibit the growth of the abnormal blood vessels that cause wet AMD. Although there are NO guarantees, we have seen remarkable results with regular in-office injection treatment (about every 4-8 weeks), including stopping the progression of wet AMD in 90 percent of patients and gaining improvement in vision in up to 30 percent,” says Daniel Ferguson, MD, who performs injections on a daily basis. He adds, “These injections are also successful for treating diabetes-related vision damage.”

Age-Related Macular Degeneration (AMD) damages central vision, causing difficulty with seeing clocks, signs, faces and words, as well as distortion of lines, colors, sizes and edges.

Prevention

“Sight-robbing conditions often go undetected and untreated because they develop gradually in one eye and good vision in the other masks the problem,” explains Daniel Paskowitz, MD, PhD, an eye care specialist with credentials from Harvard and Johns Hopkins. “People age 50-plus should have a thorough dilated eye exam every two years to check for AMD and other hidden conditions, like glaucoma. If you notice warning signs, schedule a comprehensive eye exam immediately to determine the presence, type and severity of AMD and whether or not treatment would help.”

“We also encourage wearing sunglasses, eating a diet high in healthy nutrients and low in fat and sugar, and NOT smoking (which raises risk 2-5 times). And, we have patients use a simple paper Amsler Grid to easily check their eyes at home,” says Michael Raciti, MD, a surgeon who treats all eye conditions, including cataracts and glaucoma.

Maintaining Independence

“AMD patients can stay independent and productive by following their eye care specialist’s treatment plan, utilizing low vision aids (handheld and closed circuit TV magnifiers, telescopic devices, talking books, etc.), contacting support/transport services, and learning new ways to perform activities,” reports optometrist David Scheidt, OD, who cares for patients at three area offices.

Warning Signs

AMD usually develops gradually and painlessly, and good vision in one eye can mask problems in the other. As it progresses, however, you may notice:

- Difficulty with reading or doing tasks that require close vision
- Distortion of colors, sizes & details
- Blurriness of faces, clocks & words
- Edges and lines are bent or wavy
- Blind spots (dark or empty spaces) in the center of vision

TEXTING and DRIVING

Wisconsin state law now forbids driving “any motor vehicle while composing or sending an electronic text message or an electronic mail message.” Wisconsin’s texting ban is a primary enforcement law, which means law enforcement officers may stop motorists suspected of this offense alone.

Attorney Evan Berube, Action Law Offices, S.C.

Every day millions of Americans operate a vehicle and commute to their destination. The technology available today provides for ways that people can entertain themselves or help the time go by faster. Most people now carry a cell phone or other type of mobile device. Technological advances and being a progressive society is great, yet recently persons of all ages are becoming too attached to their devices and are becoming unaware of the proper time for use. This is causing the rates of distracted driving - especially texting - to significantly rise. We all have been that person who is caught up in trying to change the radio, take a sip of coffee, put on make-up, deal with children and at the same time pay attention to our phone or send a text message. We can multi-task. Let’s take an actual look at the statistics just to see how good we really are at multi-tasking. (Sidebar on right)

These statistical facts are astonishing and overwhelmingly signal that both awareness and change is necessary. If sending a message is an absolute necessity, take the proper safety precautions: drive to a safe place where you can safely park your vehicle and then proceed to send the message.

Wisconsin along with many other states enacted specific laws to address the rising issue. Wisconsin state law now forbids driving “any motor vehicle while composing or sending an electronic text message or an electronic mail message.” Wisconsin’s texting ban is a primary enforcement law, which means law enforcement officers may stop motorists suspected of this offense alone. It is great to see the law taking action and trying to provide for a safer roadway. Now it is our turn as the drivers to follow and abide by these safety measures.

When it comes to texting and driving, no text message is worth risking life. Keep your eyes on the road and either put the phone on silent or shut it off until you can pull over to a safe place. Driving requires us to use our senses and acquired skills. The only way we can adequately do that is to remain attentive and not distracted. Remember when it comes to texting while driving, it is we the drivers who can make the positive change of ultimately having a safer roadway and commute. The reward is that the goal can be fully achieved and accomplished through our own actions. How great would that be ... a reward that we can all benefit from if we work together – a safer roadway, environment, and community! Spread the awareness. Safety on the roadways is of utmost importance to all of us who use them. Sharing this message and the statistics and bring attention to this issue.

How to Start the RV Lifestyle

Slow down and unwind

When you go RVing you don't have to worry about missing a flight, losing your luggage or renting a car. You don't even have to worry about unpacking. Home is on wheels, the world is your backyard and the journey is your life.

Too many financial responsibilities, fear that you won't like living in a small box on wheels, worried about how your extended family could possibly survive without you, afraid of losing friends and feeling isolated, still have children in school... did I miss anything? Making the decision to follow that dream seems to be the difficult part. Here are five basic tips that can help with the reality check:

1. Sell the house and buy a quality used motorhome (if you really want to travel) or a fifth-wheel/truck combination if you are thinking several months in one location. If you are concerned that you may not like the RV lifestyle, lease your house instead of selling.

2. Take the money from the house sale (or rental income), the furniture sale, the gardening tool sale, the workshop sale, the extra toys sale, the clothing sale, and put it in a bank that has national branches. This allows walk-in access for cash just about anywhere you roam. Of course your ATM card always gives you access and those machines are everywhere.

3. Handle the responsibilities issue. This turns out to be the easiest part of the decision-making process. 1) Go down the street to The UPS store and open a mailbox. They charge an annual fee for the box but send your mail anywhere for the cost of postage. There are many options for this type of service including the Escapees (a support group for RVers). 2) Sign up for automatic payment on all your bills. If you have several that still send you a letter bill, check with your bank. They can pay those bills for you right out of your checking account, free. 3) Get your paperwork in order. Create a will, make a health directive from the many online forms available, and get a passport in case you want to wander into Mexico for the winter. 4) Announce your independence to the family and give them a copy of your completed paperwork. Amazing how quickly you find out that your family really does not depend on you after all.

4. There are so many opportunities to share your life with others. Because you carry your home with you, many opportunities around the country allow you to join in. Thousands of RVers work together around the country building homes, providing shelter, ending poverty, educating and training young and old alike to become independent. The most important element is expanding their own lives while enjoying the traveling lifestyle.

On the recreation side, the National Park system, always on the lookout for RVers, hires you to live and work seasonally within the park system. Become a docent, park host, hiking guide, or any of the dozens of opportunities to live free in exchange for volunteer efforts. Plenty of playtime left over for you to explore our National parks.

Commercial RV parks are also competing for the RV workforce. Expect an hourly wage plus an RV site with utilities. You may earn around $3000 a month as the seasonal park manager or expect around $8 an hour for other duties.

5. If you still have children at home, take them with you. The more public schools decline the more support systems mushroom for homeschooling. Testing is done online or by mail. Most colleges and universities now accept homeschooling credits. There are hundreds of online forums just waiting to answer any question you have.

“RV THERE YET?”

Top Ten reasons to RETIRE to an RV Lifestyle

Retirement is the time for a simpler life and the chance to do things you didn't have time for when working.

Living the RV lifestyle has several advantages.

1. Live your retirement dreams: Are there places you've wanted to visit but never took the time or the money to do so? Now travel at your leisure and visit all those places.
2. Take your house with you: Instead of having to pack and unpack and hassle with airports or schlepping luggage in and out, everything is there. Instead of sleeping on a lumpy mattress or too hard one night, then too soft the next, enjoy your own. Your bathroom is clean and you can relax on your own comfy sofa or recliner.
3. Zero yard work and cleaning house is a breeze: With only a couple of hundred square feet to clean, cleaning house takes just a few minutes. There is no lawn to mow or yard to maintain.
4. Stay active: Most experts agree that staying active prolongs and improves quality of life. Living in an RV provides many ways to stay active physically and mentally. When traveling, you have to stay engaged with life!
5. Live less expensively: An RV is much less expensive to maintain than a house. Nightly campground fees are normally less than property tax and maintenance expenses on a stick house. Many expenses in the RV lifestyle can be controlled so you can cut back in a budget category when needed.
6. Meet new people and make new friends: RVers are very friendly people. Opportunities are constant to meet new people. Get involved with an RV club or at an RV resort and find a whole new community. Working or volunteering as you travel is another way to meet people and make friends.
7. One house, many views: When you get tired of one view, move on to the next. RVing is the ideal way to snowbird. Go where it is cool in the summer and where it is warm in the winter. Ocean view to a mountain view in a matter of a few hours.
8. No property taxes: Enjoy home ownership (your RV) without property taxes. Rent an RV space for as long as you want, then move.
9. Have many new experiences: You can actively have so many new experiences and be part of them rather than experience them vicariously on the boob tube. Stand where Lewis and Clark stood on their Voyage of Discovery. Crew for a hot air balloon at Albuquerque. Kayak among whales in Glacier Bay. Hike part of the Appalachian Trail.
10. Visit friends and relatives: Visiting friends and relatives in an RV makes visiting so much more fun. Even if you are parked in their driveway, you have your own space.

By Jaimie Hall Bruzenak. Are you considering the RV lifestyle? Is it for you? Can you afford to retire AND travel 365 days a year? 'Retire to an RV: The Roadmap to Affordable Retirement' by Jaimie Hall Bruzenak and Alice Zytz will help you with that decision. The authors' knowledge, as well as 41 solo and couple RVers have contributed their experiences in all aspects of RVing throughout the book.

The RV Lifestyle continued from page 10

So... do you see yourself already out there, swimming in lakes, oceans or pools; fishing for bass, catfish, or marlin; and boating along coastal shores or in peaceful lakes. You could be golfing on some of the finest courses in the country; playing tennis day or night; or dancing the night (or day) away. Maybe you would be satisfied just to learn something new every day.

Sounds too busy for you? How about just relaxing in the shade, or basking on the beach? You are the boss, any way you want it.

Packing

on Your Next Vacation

Let's face it, some of the most fascinating places in the world are located in some of the most impoverished places in the world. You can't visit the Pyramids of Giza without driving through the slums of Cairo. The Taj Mahal, arguably the most beautiful building ever built, sits amid some of the worst poverty anywhere. Even vacationing on a beautiful Caribbean island, your luxury resort is an anomaly; but the poverty is all around you.

By Ann Craig-Cinnamon

I've been traveling most of my life and, in fact, I lived in Tehran, Iran as a young woman back in the mid 1970's. Poverty was all around me there. I had a beggar friend that I passed every day on the street. We were warned not to give money to beggars because if you did, they wouldn't leave you alone and you might draw an unwanted crowd. So I didn't give him anything, and for his part, he never asked. We just had a friendly salaam and a smile for each other each day. But I always felt bad about it. The often used rationalization about the poor not knowing any better never held any truth for me. It's more "there but for the grace of God go I" that sums up my feelings more accurately. I don't know how you can witness other human beings struggling for their everyday existence and not be changed by it.

As much as I love to travel to exciting and exotic spots around the world, I have always had lot of trouble justifying my own good fortune being able to enjoy the best of what a country has to offer while the people there, many of them poor, are waiting on me and treating me like a king. I understand and agree with the logic that, by going, I am helping to create jobs and am contributing to the economy. But it just doesn't seem like enough.

A few years ago I read about a couple who, on their own, raised money, medical supplies and clothing at their workplace and church which they personally delivered to an orphanage in Nairobi. So when my husband and I decided to go to Kenya we thought we would try the same thing. We raised several thousand dollars, lots of clothing, and had a local pharmaceutical company donate medical supplies which we then took with us to the New Life Children's Home in Nairobi. We packed everything in old suitcases that we just left there. It wasn't a difficult thing to do; it just took a little thought and planning. And we received way more than we gave when we had the opportunity to visit with those beautiful children and see the good work the orphanage was doing in a country devastated by Aids and other diseases.

More recently when we visited Cambodia we noticed wells that had signs on them. We asked our guide about it and learned that the wells had been donated by tourists who wanted to help when they saw the poverty that the people of Cambodia were living in. We decided to donate a well ourselves so our guide took us to an area near Siem Reap where the government had given little plots of land to the poor and disabled. Many of these people had nothing but a shack to live in and no water nearby. Drinking dirty polluted water was a common occurrence and people often became ill and even died because of it. So, we donated enough money to have a well built in an area where several families lived. Believe it or not, the well only cost us $200. For the cost of a utility bill here at home, several families would have fresh, clean water to drink. It was an easy thing to do. We didn't even lift a finger.

There are a lot of non-profit organizations that offer what are called "voluntourism" trips in which the traveler gets involved in charitable work while they are visiting a poor country. And that is a great way to help. But if you are the kind of traveler who wants to go on your own but you'd like to do something to help while you are visiting, you can, if you seek it out. It doesn't have to be Cambodia or Kenya, it can be closer to home like in the Caribbean. Just do a little research ahead of time to find an organization that is legitimate, contact them to see what they might need and start a fundraiser of your own at your church before you go. Tour guides are often a great source too. You have the added bonus of seeing for yourself that your donation is going to a good cause. I guarantee you that you will enjoy your trip a lot more if you leave something meaningful behind rather than taking lots of things home with you.

ible for a taxpayer once his or her total miscellaneous c tions surpassed 2% of adjusted gross income. No more

· Miscellaneous unreimbursed job expenses.

Continuing education costs, union dues, medical tests required by an employer, regulatory and license fees for which an employee was not compensated, out-of-pocket expenses paid by workers for tools, supplies, and uniforms – these were all expenses that were deductible once a taxpayer's total miscellaneous deductions exceeded 2% of his or her AGI. That does not apply now.

· Job search expenses. Unreimbursed expenses related to a job hunt are no longer deductible. That includes payments for classes and courses taken to improve career or professional knowledge or skills as well as and job search services (such as the premium service offered by LinkedIn).

· Subsidized employee parking and transit passes. Last year, there was a corporate deduction for this; a worker could receive as much as $255 monthly from an employer to help pay for bus or rail passes or parking fees linked to a commute. The subsidy did not count as employee income. The absence of the employer deduction could mean such subsidies will be much harder to come by for workers this year.

· Home equity loan interest. While the ceiling on the home mortgage interest deduction fell to $750,000 for mortgages taken out starting December 15, 2017, the deduction for home equity loan interest disappears entirely this year with no such grandfathering.

· Investment fees and expenses. This deduction has been repealed, and it should also be noted that the cost of investment newsletters and safe deposit boxes fees are no longer deductible. In some situations, investors may want to deduct these fees from their account balances (i.e., pre-tax savings) rather than pay them by check (after-tax dollars).

· Tax preparation fees. Individual taxpayers are now unable to deduct payments to CPAs, tax prep firms, and tax software companies.

· Legal fees. This is something of a gray area: while it appears hourly legal fees and contingent, attorney fees may no longer be deductible this year, other legal expenses may be deductible.

· Convenience fees for debit and credit card use for federal tax payments. Have you ever paid your federal taxes this way? If you do this in 2018, such fees cannot be deducted.

An important note for business owners. All the vanished deductions for unreimbursed employee expenses noted above pertain to Schedule A. If you are a sole proprietor and routinely file a Schedule C with your 1040 form, your business-linked deductions are unaltered by the new tax reforms.

An important note for teachers. One miscellaneous unreimbursed job expense deduction was retained amid the wave of reforms: classroom teachers who pay for school supplies out-of-pocket can still claim a deduction of up to $250 for such costs.

Only time will tell how the Tax Cuts & Jobs Act affects the economy and markets in the long-term, but the initial overall economic response has been positive. While we do have another year before we file our 2018 taxes, now is the time to start considering how the new tax code will affect us as we live our daily lives in 2018.

A young newlywed couple...

I'm the one who wears the pants in this family!"

Riddle: What does EVERY woman want?

Answer on page 21

Women will never be equal to men until they can walk down the street with a bald head and a beer gut, and still think they are sexy.

Why do husbands die before their wives?
They want to.

Why does it take 100 million sperms to fertilize one egg?
Because they won't stop to ask directions.

Love is telling someone to go to hell and worrying about them getting there safely.

If I ever need a heart transplant, I'd want my ex's. It's never been used.

Silence doesn't mean your bedtime performance left her speechless.

What is the difference between men and women? A woman wants one man to satisfy her every need. A man wants every woman to satisfy his one need.

If a man talks dirty to a woman, that's sexual harassment. If a woman talks dirty to a man, that'll be $6.50 a minute.

Is your name Wi-Fi?
Because I'm feeling a connection.

My girlfriend is always stealing my t-shirts and sweaters...
But if I take one of her dresses, suddenly "we need to talk".

I met my soulmate. She didn't.

There's a fine line between cuddling and holding someone down so they can't get away.

He started by running his hand across her shoulders and the small of her back.

Then, he proceeded to run his hand gently down her side, sliding his hand over her stomach. He continued on, gently feeling her hips, first one side and the other. His hand ran further down the outside of her thighs. His gentle stroking then started up the inside of her left thigh, stopped and then returned to do the same to her right thigh.

By this time the woman was becoming 'relaxed' and she squirmed a little to better position herself. The man stopped abruptly and rolled over to his side of the bed.

Why are you stopping?" she whispered.
He whispered back, "I found the remote."

SUPERFOOD

We've all heard of "Superfoods" – the many foods with superpower-esq multitasking abilities: providing multiple disease-fighting nutrients, filling you up so you can enjoy plenty of food without excess calories, and can be easily included in everyday meals. You're probably aware of the obvious ones – blueberries, salmon, eggs, etc – but there are tons more you should be eating and can incorporate into your diet without breaking the bank or donning an iron chef hat!

· Sardines: Sardines have gotten a bad rap, but loaded with heart-healthy, mood-boosting omega-3 fats and vitamin D, this is one "Superfood" you might want to reconsider. Added Bonus: sardines are small and low on the food chain, so they don't harbor the toxins like bigger fish.

· Tofu: This is widely accepted as one of the healthiest foods, and understandably so! Low in calories, high in protein and iron (plus no saturated fat or cholesterol) this Superfood should be a constant staple in your fridge! Plus, it can be made with almost any sauce, in countless recipes, alongside a huge variety of sides! TIP: Stir-Fry your tofu with broccoli and eat with quinoa – the ultimate power meal.

· Pomegranate: This bright, vibrant fruit is chock-full of antioxidants, and have been proven to prevent a variety of chronic conditions, such as heart disease, Alzheimer's and cancer. Don't have time to prepare the fruit? You can get many of the same benefits from drinking a glass of pomegranate juice!

· Kale: On top of delivering a raft of cancer-fighting antioxidants, kale is one of the vegetable world's top sources of vitamin A, which promotes eye and skin health and may help strengthen the immune system. It's a great source of heart-healthy fiber, which keeps your weight in check, and delivers almost as much Vitamin C as an orange!

· Quinoa: While the name sounds fancy, Quinoa is really just a grain packed with fiber and protein and, to top it off, it only takes 15 to 20 minutes to cook (and goes great with almost ANY vegetable!). That combination of fiber and protein has an extra value too: Research shows that the two together can help you feel full for longer.

Tofu triangles with peanut sauce

By Mayo Clinic Staff

This is a wonderful meatless entree that pairs well with lightly steamed vegetables.

14 ounces firm tofu, drained
1 teaspoon peanut or sesame oil
2 tbsp reduced-sodium soy sauce
2 tablespoons natural peanut butter
1 tablespoon rice wine vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes
4 green onions, finely chopped
1/3 cup water
2 tsp toasted sesame seeds

Directions

Slice the tofu crosswise into 4 one-inch slabs. Then cut each slab into two triangles (total of 8 pieces). Blot with paper towels.

Spray a large skillet with cooking spray. Heat pan on medium-high heat and add oil. When oil is hot, add tofu and fry over medium-high heat until golden. Turn and cook on the second side.

While the tofu is cooking, combine soy sauce, peanut butter, vinegar, brown sugar, pepper flakes, half of the onions and water in a food processor or blender. Process until smooth.

When tofu is lightly browned, add sauce to pan and cook until bubbling. Turn off the heat, scatter toasted sesame seeds and remaining green onions over the top and serve. Yum!

“...and after the fire had thawed the snow and warmed the ground, we removed the fire to a little distance and made our bed on the ashes where the fire had warmed the ground.”

Although scientific data was not collected comprehensively until modern times, our predecessors left hundreds of stories about winter conditions. As more and more of their words are put together by the Wisconsin Historical Society, we can get glimpses into the history of Wisconsin winters. For example, the earliest account of a Wisconsin winter was written by fur traders who wintered in 1659-60 near Lac Court Oreilles. When severe weather curtailed hunting, the entire community of exiled Hurons and Ottawas began to starve. “Those that have any life seeketh out for roots,” one of them wrote later (slightly modernized here), “which could not be done without great difficulty, the earth being frozen 2 or 3 feet deep, and the snow 5 or 6 above it.” After hundreds of people had starved, more snow and cold followed, which crusted the deep drifts — unexpectedly proving to be their salvation: “The snow falls, the forest clears itself ... The weather continued so [cold] 3 days that we needed no rackets [snowshoes] more, for the snow hardened much. The small staggs [deer] are as if they were stakes in it, after they made 7 or 8 capers. It’s an easy matter for us to take them and cut their throats with our knives.”

Ten years later, across the state near Green Bay, Father Claude Allouez spent the winter visiting various Indian tribes to see if they would welcome a missionary. Late in February 1670 he headed back from a Potawatomi village near the current site of University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, later recalling: “On the twenty-third, we set out to return thence; but the wind, which froze our faces, and the snow, compelled us to halt, after we had gone two leagues [five miles], and to pass the night on the lake.

WISCONSIN WINTERS

On the following day, the severity of the cold having diminished, although very little, we continued our journey with much suffering. On my part, I had my nose frozen, and I had a fainting fit that compelled me to sit down on the ice, where I should have remained, my companions having gone on ahead, if, by a divine providence, I had not found in my handkerchief a clove, which gave me strength enough to reach the settlement.”

The French explorers, missionary priests, and fur traders were succeeded in the early 19th century by permanent settlers who also left evidence about Wisconsin winters. In December 1836, for instance, the first surveyors of Madison “found the snow very deep, and after a hard day’s work wading in the snow, we camped at night between the Third Lake (Monona) and Dead Lake (Wingra), where we found some thick timber and a sheltered spot. With a good deal of difficulty we made a log heap fire and eat our snack, and after the fire had thawed the snow and warmed the ground, we removed the fire to a little distance and made our bed on the ashes where the fire had warmed the ground. The weather was extremely cold but we slept warm and the next morning ... the weather extremely cold we returned to Mineral Point to wait for milder weather.”

When they returned in February 1837, things were hardly better: “We found that the snow still covered the ground and we stuck the stakes in the snow, the ground being too deeply frozen in most places to receive the stakes. We camped in the timber in the low grounds under the hill of the Fourth Lake (Mendota) and were compelled to abandon our work by a severe snow storm that so blinded us that it was with great difficulty we found our way across the Fourth Lake to the cabin of St. Cyr, where we stayed until the storm was over.”

With time, frontier homesteaders constructed cabins and, eventually, frame or brick buildings that were heated with open hearths or wood stoves. They also began to keep records of the climate. For example, the first systematic weather observations in Madison were made at the University of Wisconsin’s North Hall in the early 1850s. Professors enlisted the help of students, including the now-famed naturalist and UW student, John Muir, to make notes. More regular weather records began in 1869 when observers started recording formal readings of temperature and precipitation as well as written notes about things like clouds and ice.

In Wisconsin, does shivering count as exercise?"

*****

Told my wife I wanted our kids every other weekend and she reminded me that we're married and live together so I'd have to see them every day.

I know you have been laying awake at night wondering why baby diapers have brand names such as "Luvs", "Huggies," and "Pampers", while undergarments for old people are called "Depends".

Well here is the low down on the whole thing. When babies poo in their pants, people are still gonna Luv'em, Hug'em and Pamp'er'em. When old people poo in their pants it "Depends" on who's in the will!

RIDDLE answer from page 17: MORE.

Adams Rib

Adam was walking around the Garden of Eden feeling very lonely, so God asked Adam, "What is wrong with you?"

Adam said, "Lord, I don't have anyone to talk to."

God said, "Then I will give you a companion, and she will be called a 'woman'. This person will cook for you and wash your clothes, she will always agree with every decision you make. She will bear your children and never ask you to get up in the middle of the night to take care of them. She will not nag you, and will always be the first to admit she was wrong when you've had a disagreement. She will never have a headache, and will freely give 'love' and compassion whenever needed. She will never question your behaviour or the company you keep. She will support you and understand that you have important decisions to make throughout your life and don't have time for nonsense..."

Adam asked God, "What will this woman cost?"

God said, "An arm and a leg..."

Adam said, "What can I get for just a rib?"

The rest is history.

FREE BIBLE EDUCATION SEMINAR

SERIES – “TRUTH Or TRADITION”

“Taking the Confusion Out of Studying the Bible”

You believe the Bible is the inspired word of God. So, with your best intentions, you start reading God’s holy word from the beginning or maybe you try to follow one of those “read through the Bible in a year” plans. Before long, you are already behind in the reading plan or you find the Bible to be confusing or maybe boring or just too hard to understand. So, you either give up or plow through to the end whereby you can say you’ve read the Bible; but, it is without understanding and not making a difference in your life.

Free Half-Day Seminar – Saturday, March 17, 2018

Discover from the Bible:

- God’s prescribed method for studying His holy word
- How you can enjoy the Bible and have it effectually work in your life
  - That no knowledge of Greek or Hebrew is needed
- What most churches won’t teach you that will enable you to understand the Bible and trust it without mistakes

Registration: 8:30am-9:00am – Sessions: 9:00am-12:15pm

Free Bible study materials for those who register by March 10, 2018

Based on limited space, walk-ins are welcome!

Upcoming Sunday Seminars (No reservations needed) 10am-11:30am

“Biblical Reasons To Stop Tithing” – March 4, 2018

“Are You Guilty of Bible ‘Lip-Service’?” – March 18, 2018

All seminars are at the Holiday Inn Express, 15451 W. Beloit Rd., New Berlin, WI
